WARM-UP

Talk about the questions with a partner.

1. Do you watch the World Cup?
Which team do you like?
2. Why can sport bring people together?

USEFUL LANGUAGE

I watch... with...

Sport brings people together because...

Every four years, something strange happens. For one month, people who never play football sit in front of screens at home, in cafés and in city squares. Strangers hug after a goal. A whole country stops to watch one game. The World Cup is football, but it is also much more.

No other event is this big. About half the world watches some part of it, and more than a billion people may watch the final. Part of it is the show: the colors, the noise, the last-minute penalty. And part of it is that the fans care so much.

But to host the World Cup is very expensive. A country spends billions of dollars on a new stadium, hotels and trains. Sometimes this is good, and people use the new metro for years. Sometimes it is not, and the stadium is almost empty after the last game.

So who pays the cost? Often it is ordinary people, and sometimes for many years. But others say the country feels proud, the world learns its name, and for one month borders seem a little smaller. Both of these things can be true at the same time.

For one month every four years, the whole world watches the same thing. Why does that still matter?

01 CRITICAL THINKING

WAS IT WORTH IT?

Five things a country got when it hosted the World Cup. Was the money well spent?

Work in a group. Mark every line WORTH IT, NOT SURE or NOT. Your group must agree, and be ready to say who paid.

WHAT THEY GOT	FIVE YEARS LATER	WORTH IT	NOT SURE	NOT
A $200 million stadium	Beautiful. Now a small team plays there, and it is nearly empty.	☐	☐	☐
A new metro line	Built for the fans. Now local people use it every morning.	☐	☐	☐
40,000 jobs	Real work for two years. Most of the jobs ended after the final.	☐	☐	☐
The debt	People are still paying it. Some of them were children at the time.	☐	☐	☐
One national memory	A goal the whole country watched together. You cannot buy that.	☐	☐	☐

YOUR VERDICT Worth it in total? _____ Would you say yes for your own city? _____

- DISCUSS
- 1 Can a memory be worth a debt that your children pay?

2 Compare with another group. Who said yes for their own city, and why?
